

World Sacred Music Festival

Olympia, Washington, USA

60 second Public Service Announcement:

On Saturday March 8, the World Sacred Music Festival returns to Olympia. The fourth annual festival is a family friendly whirlwind celebration of the sacred music and dance of our planet. Two stages showcase performances of Indian ragas, Duke Ellington's sacred jazz, Hebrew chant, African drum and dance, Native American flute, and more.

The festival also features interactive workshops on didjeridoo, Indian temple dances, shapenote singing, whirling dervish dance, and Zimbabwean marimba.

The World Sacred Music Festival takes place at South Puget Sound Community College's Minnaert Center for the Arts all day on Saturday March 8. Tickets available at the door with a student/low income discount. There's also ethnic food and plentiful free parking. For more details, call 360-357-7224 or visit www.olsacredmusic.org.

For more information, photos, or interview possibilities, contact:

Scott Stevens, WSMF Artistic Director
Phone: 360-259-1682
scott@earball.net

Kathy Erlandson, Interfaith Works Executive Director
Phone: 360-357-7224 (office hours M-F 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.)
interfaithworks@comcast.net